Transparency For Students

- All institutions should include a reason for credit being denied in their communications practices
- Credit transfer opportunities should be communicated at the time of application and again at the time of offer
- Costs of credit transfer need to be communicated clearly at the beginning of the process
- Colleges should be required to continually report on collaboration and credit transfer activities through SMA's

Supporting International Students

- International recruiters should have an understanding of credit transfer processes and costs to support international applicants
- International students should receive information on credit transfer opportunities at the time of offer

Early Identification

- Automatic identification of potential credit transfer students via. OCAS applications
- Automatic recognition of credits given to students at time of offer

Making Credit Transfer

Affordable

 Institutions should start a per-credit billing practice where students can be refunded for the courses they do not take
